Frost invites brave souls to take the plunge

JENN WATT
County Life Editor

Perhaps it's the prospect of an icy cold plunge that brings people together; maybe it's the charities the Polar Bear Challenge benefits. Or it could be the thrill of casting off winter coats and boots in the middle of February and charging headlong into Head Lake.

Whatever the motivation, each of the last seven years, dozens of people have signed up to participate in the Haliburton and District Lions Club's fundraiser for SickKids Garron Family Cancer Centre and Haliburton Highlands Health Services Foundation, raising more than $45,000 between the two.

This year's event takes place during Haliburton's Frost Festival on Saturday, Feb. 16.

Jim Frost, one of the Polar Bear Challenge's organizers, said the event brings out silly antics and also touching stories.

"The second year we had the event, I had a call from a gentleman in Cambridge and he had heard about our event. He had been taking his boy to SickKids for years and he wanted to be part of it," he said. The man's friend cottaged in the Highlands, so he came up to take part.

Last year, a group of friends and family came together to honour the life of Phoenix Acero, who died in 2017. Their team gathered the most pledges for charity.

Prizes are given out for best costume (individuals and teams) and most pledges (individuals and teams), donated by Sir Sam's Ski and Ride, McKecks, Just Wine and Beer, Maple Avenue Restaurant, and Haliburton Home Hardware.

To give polar participants a place to prepare for their brave descent into frigid water, Haliburton Timber Mart donates the use of two sheds, which are brought in on a flatbed truck the day before. The sheds are heated and give participants a place to get ready and also somewhere to dash into once they're out of the water.

Mike Iles of the Haliburton Fire Department is in charge of organizing firefighters, who help keep everyone safe.

"He goes early in the morning and they clear the beach area and put carpet down to make the footing secure. He sets that up and makes sure the ice is clear," Frost said.

Algonquin Highlands firefighters bring their water rescue equipment and are on hand, giving participants comfort that there is help available if needed.

"We think this is great of them to do that," Frost said.

New this year, all participants will receive a T-shirt that reads "I survived the Haliburton Lions Club's polar bear challenge." The shirts are sponsored by Curry Chevrolet Buick GMC Ltd. and Emmerson Lumber.

"Nobody's out of pocket," Frost said. "It doesn't affect the money going to SickKids [or HHHSF]. Every dollar collected goes to those hospitals."

To join in the fun, pick up a pledge form at Cranberry Cottage, Haliburton Foodland, Todd's Independent Grocers, West Guilford Shopping Centre or go online to haliburtonlions.com.

Registration takes place from 10 a.m. to noon on Saturday, Feb. 16 at Head Lake Park and the event starts in the same location at 1 p.m. For more information, contact Jim Frost at 705-457-4031.

U-Links seeking project proposals, readies for Celebration of Research

U-Links Centre for Community-Based Research is looking forward to their 21st annual Celebration of Research on Saturday, March 23 at the Minden Hills Community Centre, and is already looking ahead for project proposals for the 2019-2020 academic year.

Twenty-two projects with Trent University in geography, environmental science, forensics and international development will be presented at this year's Celebration of Research on March 23 from 1 to 4 p.m.

The event will feature light refreshments, poster presentations, and a keynote address from Ray Letheren: a distinguished community and environmental advocate best known for his work with the Blue Bayfield Community Project, on the topic of translating research into action. U-Links welcomes all from the community to attend.

New this year, U-Links has decided to move up the start of project-planning and development for the 2019-2020 academic calendar. This will help the research group better match projects with students.

Interested organizations are encouraged to reach out to Amanda Duncombe-Lee, U-Links projects coordinator, via email (aduncombe-lee@ulinks.ca) or call 705-286-2411 to discuss potential projects for the future from now until June 30.

All organizations are eligible to develop project proposals, from small non-profits, to community associations, municipal working groups, and private businesses. U-Links hopes to hear from interested participants soon.

Interested organizations can search for examples of past research by keyword, subject tag, and research area via their new online database. The database includes a full screen map where users can view the locations of community-based research projects in Haliburton County. The direct link to the database can be found at https://database.ulinks.ca.

After speaker presentations, students, representatives of host organizations and members of the community connected with each other at the U-Links Celebration of Research event held in Minden last year. This year's event is planned for March 23. /SUE TIFFIN Staff

Land trust receives $10,000 donation

The Haliburton Highlands Land Trust announced recently it had received $10,000 from the Coral and Bill Martin Family Foundation. The money will go to the Barnum Creek Nature Reserve.

The land trust said the donation comes "when revenue from grants and fundraising is becoming more and more difficult to attract" and will allow them to start doing the work to open the new nature reserve to the public.

"On behalf of the board of [the land trust], and all of the residents of Haliburton County, we extend a heartfelt thank you to the Coral and Bill Martin Family Foundation for their generous donation. It will last a lifetime in partnership with the Barnum Creek Nature Reserve," a statement from the land trust said.

Artists have opportunity to create at island retreat

A private island on Koshlong Lake will house selected artists this summer as part of a new artists' residency.

Writers, musicians, visual artists and artists of other disciplines are invited to apply to take part in the experience: an off-grid, water-access location that organizers say is "ideal for quiet reflection and immersion in the natural world."

The application process will soon be open.

The Halls Island Artist Residency Management Committee notes the cabin accommodations don't support "large scale electronic needs," such as recording music. There is solar power, which is enough to charge a laptop for writing projects. The website recommends that musicians would benefit from using the time there to compose music, rather than record it.

Artists from the Haliburton Highlands and beyond are welcome to apply.

The island is privately owned by a family who has decided to provide the residency, accommodations and island access.

Six to eight weeks of residency will be available in two-week blocks. Artists interested in applying will find information and application forms on the website at www.hallsisland.ca.

Don Gage, committee co-chair, said the program brings benefits to the local community.

"Each artist will be encouraged to connect and engage with our artistic community and residents. The Halls Island Artist Residency program will be a great addition to our arts community in the Highlands," he said in a press release.

There is no accommodation cost to resident artists other than food and personal supplies. Transportation to and from the island will be provided by the Halls Island group while transportation to the docking area will be the responsibility of the chosen artists. Those applying should be comfortable staying alone or with one other compatible artist in this rustic setting.

Off-grid, water-access cabins on Koshlong Lake are available to artists this summer through a new residency program. /Photo submitted

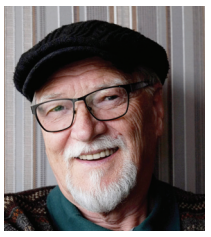
The Elements II: members exhibit creations at Rails End Gallery

IT'S THE TIME of year again when the Rails End Gallery holds its annual Members' Salon, wherein members of the gallery, who happen to be artists, get to display their works, created on a theme. This year again the theme is the elements, and the name of the exhibition, is The Elements II. There are an incredible 109 works by 67 artists on display.

What makes annual members' shows so exciting to me is that submissions range across the artistic spectrum; pottery, painting, woodwork, jewelry, mixed media, fibre arts and photography. This year there is also a video installation. As always landscapes dominated the painting category, but there are some portraits and abstracts to be found.



GEORGE FARRELL
On Arts/Culture

There are some very fine paintings to be seen. I could not pick a favourite among them, and I need to re-visit the show, when the gallery is not as crowded as it was for the opening reception, which was held on the afternoon of Saturday, Jan. 26. But among the other media forms some pieces stood out to me on initial viewing.

I love the pierced pottery by Rene Woltz which appears to float in air; two quilts by Shelley Houser; one of harbour boats, and an abstract meant to represent geese flying in formation. The Gillian Taylor entry titled "Beauty in Small Spaces" features tiny, succulent plants, incorporated into a piece of cedar driftwood. And then there's the hilarious fur-rimmed bowl by Susanne James, and a copper-coloured mask by Karen Stoskopf Harding.

Rossana Dewey, who is a fine landscape artist, submitted a colourful self portrait of herself, bundled up against the elements, and Victoria Gregory's two oils "Molly" and "Jean" demonstrate a keen eye for composition and colour. But this year the group that I'm most surprised and impressed with are the fibre artists.

Karen Sirianni submitted four incredibly intricate and well-conceived abstracts, presented as a square foursome. They are all quite different in terms of pattern and colour, but each one features a stitched globe as its centre point while abstractly displaying the ancient elements of earth, air, fire and water.

Brenda Reise has submitted several felted pieces, my favourite being "Green Pastures" which depicts a colourful, pastoral scene of sheep in fields. It has a British look about it with hills in the background and a stone fence in the foreground. I guess I was most drawn to this piece, because it evokes memories of my childhood, parts of which were spent in Wales.

Reise is from Bancroft and is a new artist at the Rails End. She is self-taught and only started using fibre during the last two years. Before that she painted and worked in stained glass. Reise was present at the opening and I sought her out for a few words.

"I used to spin and had Angora goats," she said "and I was inspired by the colours I saw at the Amonte Fibrefest."

Reise has used a variety of dyed wool from different breeds of sheep in her pieces, and as homage to them she "wanted to do something with sheep in it." Reise said she was "amazed with the array of talent on display and the numbers of people supporting the gallery."

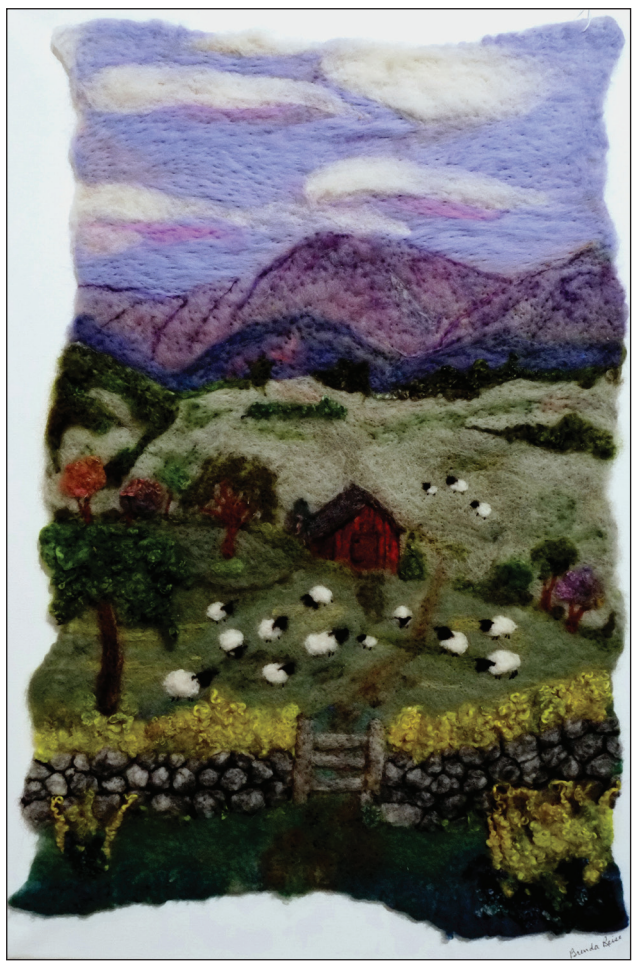
I also spoke with Rails End curator Laurie Jones about this year's Members' Salon.

"When I realized how many pieces were coming in I knew that hanging the 2019 Rails End Members' Salon would be a challenge. A rough calculation on the amount of wall space available did not reassure me. However, the beauty of a salon style show is that you go floor to ceiling, so once I found a rhythm the works fell into place. I'd like to thank Jacquie Halupka and Jackie Wells for working with me to ensure each piece found a spot in the giant puzzle that is The Elements II," Jones said.

Each year the public gets to choose their favourite piece.

"To win The People's Choice Award is a high honour," Jones said, "and the work which receives the highest number of votes wins (one vote per visitor). With so many artists participating it's not hard to see why the opening reception was packed, or why so many local residents look forward to this exhibition."

The Elements II will run until March 16. As part of



"Green Pastures," by Brenda Reise.

The Elements II festivities there will be two live performances: Love Songs, by Hank O'Reilly and Scott Duggan, will take place Friday, Feb. 15 with Albert John Saxby opening for the duo. Then on March 2 Biljana Bonchatova will perform A Sound Journey: Medicine for The Waters.

Don't miss The Elements II, there's something there for everybody, and to my mind it's the most fun exhibition of the year. The Rails End Gallery is located at 23 York Street in Haliburton.

Top 10 reasons I wish dogs could talk

Modern science never ceases to amaze me. We play around with genetics and all sorts of other things to the point where I no longer believe that anything is impossible – other than me getting a tax refund.

That's why lately I have been wondering what it would be like if dogs understood us and could talk. Here are the top 10 benefits I think we would gain.

1. We could explain we don't consider leg humping the highest form of flattery.
2. They could do their own damn social media.
3. We could answer the age old question: do Chihuahuas have a Mexican accent?
4. You could communicate that you want them to retrieve the duck and not the decoy.
5. You could have an awkward heart to heart talk about "dog breath."
6. Finally some verification regarding who ate your homework.
7. We could find out if sleeping dogs lie – or merely exaggerate.
8. They could say "Over there!" instead of just point.
9. We could learn what they have against hydrants, mail carriers and cats.
10. You'd finally have the answer to "Who's a good boy?"

Winter Dusk

No full moon to illuminate the whiteness between the trees
Accepting the opposite of sunrise with its brilliant blue skies
Giving an alternative world full of mystery and unidentified shadows
Deepening shade upon shade
Accompanied by a forever stillness and silence
Seeping into the marrow of bone
Taking over
Creating a world of reverence
As the end of day becomes a vigil
Bent on wading through the last fragments of light
Deeply listening for the hope of hearing the night owl
Eyes peering into the blackness of night
… Soft silence…

Canadian Cancer Society seeks volunteer drivers

Can you imagine being recently diagnosed with cancer and told that you need to travel to Toronto to receive your life saving treatment? For many people in Haliburton that is the reality they face.

But what if you didn't have family or friends who could take you there? What would you do?

The Canadian Cancer Society offers Wheels of Hope, a transportation service that helps people get to their life saving treatment. The service relies on volunteers from the community to drive clients and is in need of volunteers who can drive long distance to Peterborough, Oshawa and Toronto.

"Volunteers are the lifeblood of the Canadian Cancer Society. It takes a special person to become a volunteer driver," says Amanda Delgado, volunteer engagement coordinator with the Canadian Cancer Society. "These volunteers use their own vehicle to offer friendly support and kindness at a time when patients need it most. Without them giving their time to drive, many people would simply not be able to get to their cancer treatments."

In 2018, our volunteer drivers in the Peterborough and District area made 7,879 trips totaling 809,611 km. These drivers helped 61 children and 332 adults get to their cancer appointments both locally and in Toronto. The Canadian Cancer Society anticipates the need for the Wheels of Hope transportation program will increase each year given the aging population and more advanced screening practices.

"If you have some time to spare during the work week and love to drive, then we could use your support," says Delgado. "Volunteer drivers are well trained and supported in their role. They must attend a training session and have a MTO and criminal records check before joining our team of volunteer drivers."

The Canadian Cancer Society offers flexible day-time driving opportunities and provides a small reimbursement for kms accumulated. If you are interested in becoming a volunteer driver contact the Canadian Cancer Society at 705-726-8032 or 1-800-338-6610 or at cancer.ca/wheelsofhope today.

New restaurant owners have recipe for success

SUE TIFFIN
County Life Staff

Felicia Dai and Kam Li are in business.

The couple have owned Win Yeung Chinese restaurant since June of last year, and though they call themselves "fresh hands" in managing a restaurant, they also acknowledge that seven months into the venture, they are feeling confident and business is going well.

Dai and Li met about 12 years ago, when they were students in Guangzhou, China. "We went to the same school, a different class, beside each other," said Dai. "He was Class 3, and I was Class 4."

Li, who Dai said is ambitious and hard-working, came first to Canada to "see a different world,"as the couple describes it. In China he was doing well working in a restaurant, but he wasn't getting as much training and experience as he wanted.

"He wasn't really learning things from the chef, but here, the culture's more fair to everyone," said Dai. "If he wants to learn, the people want to teach you. That's maybe what [made] him want to go to Toronto, to see a new world."

Dai followed from China to Canada after she graduated from college.

"And then everything started over," she said. "It's hard but it's interesting, because you want to see something more. You want to do something more."

After studying at Seneca College, Dai became an early childhood educator in Scarborough, while Li pursued his dream in a restaurant, where he trained and worked his way up to a chef position within 10 years.

When Alvy Tsang, then the manager of Win Yeung Chinese restaurant, and Alex Cao, chef, were ready to retire after about 14 years at the restaurant, they turned to the young couple, who were family friends, to take the business on.

"We were just like, how about we try it?" said Dai. "We didn't really have plans for it. It's a challenge – we really took a risk. We were not really knowing what would happen. We were just like, OK, we'll come in and try."

Though Dai said it felt like the couple was gambling, she also said she wanted to support Li in his dream.

"He already liked doing the restaurant for this many years," she said. "I thought, if he wanted to try it, how about I support him. I really liked the job I did before, but if he wanted to do something for us, for our lives, it's better ... [to be] a better man or [make] a better life for us. And how about we do it together?"

Tsang and Cao worked with Li and Dai, going over the business and sharing their knowledge of the restaurant with their successors.

"The old owners gave us the same recipe of the sauce," said Dai. "They taught him how to do it, taught him a little bit [of the] secrets in the recipes, [so we can] keep the quality, and maybe the taste will be very similar. I can't say the exact same. Even though the same chef, the same recipe, you cannot control exactly the same."

When it was time, Tsang and Cao stepped back and Li and Dai stepped in.

"They trained us about two or three months, they worked with us together

Felicia Dai and Kam Li took ownership of the Win Yeung Chinese restaurant at 37 Maple Ave. last June. Previous owners Alvy Tsang and Alex Cao offered training and the restaurant's recipes to the couple prior to retiring. /SUE TIFFIN Staff and then let go, and we took it over," said Dai." Really took it over, and tried by ourselves."

Initially, making the restaurant run smoothly was challenging.

"The first day they were not here, it was really a lot of people, suddenly," Dai said, laughing. "Like, sometimes Saturday there aren't that many people in the mornings coming, but that day, I don't understand why, that day, Saturday, people were all over, and then we were like, what am I doing now? It was quite messy I think. I kept saying, 'sorry, sorry, for keeping you waiting for so long.' I kept saying sorry."

Eventually, Li and Dai figured out how to work together to help each other out.

"And now I can do it," said Dai, and then, laughing: "But of course they still need to wait a bit, I do not have 10 hands, I only have two hands."

The couple live locally with their two-year-old, Ashley, who is settling in to a schedule at daycare where she has a best friend.

"That one is a bubble gum, always sticking to me," Dai said lovingly.

Dai said she can feel lonely living so far from friends and family, and the schedule at the restaurant hasn't given her much opportunity for friendships, so she joked she is extra chatty with customers who come in and are friendly.

"If you like to talk to me, I'm really willing to talk as well," she said.

Dai told the Echo numerous times that she and Li are appreciating the kindness of Haliburton residents.

"So from China to Toronto it's a big change, and from Toronto to here as well it's a big change, but for me, it's fine,"she said. "It's OK. The people are good. The people are nice. The place is nice, even if it's really cold."

Win Yeung Chinese Restaurant at 37 Maple Avenue in Haliburton is open from 11 a.m. to 9 p.m., Tuesday to Sunday. Visit www.winyeung.com for menu information.

Real Estate Update
How can you justify price?

QUESTION: How can you help me to price my home correctly?

ANSWER: Pricing is the most vital element in the selling process. Experienced Realtors like us know what's going on. We KNOW what Sellers are really getting for homes like yours. Pulling an abnormally high price out of a hat may be one thing, but that price has to be justified. We can prepare a Comparative Market Analysis to convince any doubtful prospect that your home is worth what we are asking. We can cite similar homes that have gone for this price… or more. That's why you'll get the best possible price by selling with our TEAM!

Assistance sought from Ministry of Health

Underserviced area request endorsed

by Jerry Grozelle

The municipality will seek the help of the Ministry of Health in attempting to resolve the shortage of doctors in Minden.

Anson, Hindon and Minden council passed a resolution asking the Ministry of Health to designate the municipality an "Underserviced Area".

The Underserviced Area Program is administered by the Ministry of Health to provide financial incentives to recruit health care professionals to practise in areas of Ontario designated as underserviced.

Council considers this area underserviced since St. Joseph's Hospital has deemed it necessary to close the emergency services administered from the Minden Hospital, for a total of 40 hours per week, because there is a lack of doctors to provide on-call emergency services.

Council, and the community are making every effort to entice physicians to the area.

In its resolution, council pointed out that the Minden Hospital provides health care for a tourist area with numerous municipalities, from various counties. It was also emphasized that: "From the months of May to October, the influx of summer residents increases the population serviced by the Minden Hospital by thousands, thereby creating an even greater need for immediate restored emergency services and further intensifies the severe impact of this situation, that resulted from a lack of physicians."

Copies of the resolution are being sent to Victoria-Haliburton MPP Chris Hodgson and to the St. Joseph's Hospital Board or their support.

Development approved

Council passed a resolution agreeing in principle to a site plan submitted by Mark Coles regarding proposed development associated with the purchase of the Ogopogo Lodge property on Mountain Lake.

Council inspected the site plan at last Thursday's meeting.

"I'm pleased to see that the septic system has been moved to the back of the property, away from the lake," said reeve Jeanne Anthon.

Agreement in principle was granted on the conditions that parking be upgraded to municipal standards, that a site plan agreement is entered into with the purchaser, and that final health approval is obtained.

During council's discussions it was agreed that two other provisions: namely, that the two existing cabins be relocated to meet municipal setback specifications; and that planning fees be

Number of boards studied

by Andrew Milne

Minister of Education and Training Dave Cooke announced February 23 that the number of boards of education in Ontario would be reduced by 40 to 50 percent.

But it is unclear at this point whether this will affect the Haliburton board.

In the same announcement, Cooke announced initiatives apparently aimed at controlling administrative costs within boards, and at decreasing the number of trustees.

The administrative officers of the Haliburton board, along with administrative officers from across the province met with Cooke the same day to discuss the plan. Director of education Brad Saunders, superintendent of business Jim Bradley, and superintendent of education Dale Robinson returned from To-

Happy with Highlands Hospitality

by Carol Moffatt

They came, they rode, and they raised more than $14,000 for Easter Seals. The first visit of Women on Snow roared into the Highlands last weekend (Feb. 17, 18, 19) and, from all accounts, was a resounding success.

Sixty-three year old Marie McDonald was one of the oldest riders last weekend. Hailing from the Ottawa Valley area, McDonald was riding with her longtime sledding partner Elda Cook, 63, and her daughter-in-law Kim, 37.

"They fussed over us all week. When I left, my husband only said to have fun and check the oil," said McDonald, the elder, with a laugh.

"My husband was so relaxed he left to go fishing, so I got a couple of goodlooking young guys in my neighbourhood to load my sled for me," added Cook, with a wink.

For them, the weekend in Haliburton was well worth the visit.

"Fantstic, and really well organized," were two terms they used to describe their ex-
